Mr. Sturkey Explains.

(McClure Messenger.)
The editors of Press and Banner and Mediums are not to have understood my statement "that owing to the financial situation during the past few weeks it had been impossible for me to attend to the editorial duties of the paper." I am not surprised, however, that these disreputable editors could not understand this, for it related to a moral issue principally. Respectfully,
W. O. Sturkey.

Says the Greenville News: "The patrons of the C. and G. now have no ground for complaint against the Southern Railway. Three mail and passenger trains a day each way between Greenville and Columbia is a service that cannot be improved upon. The public doubtless will be duly appreciative of it." All of which we endorse. And while we are at it, let us not forget Congressman Allen's efforts in securing the additional mail service. He worked in season and out of season for months, and the people who now enjoy the splendid service should thank him for what he did to secure it.

That Mr. Roosevelt may not be the nominee who the two, Tar or Cortright, from the zoo and the people hoodooed from Kalamazoo in Waterloo? The national bird chases, who, who, who—Clinton Gassette.

When in need of merchandise you will do the right thing to give us a call. We have served thousands of good people in the last twenty-seven months and every one will vouch for our good goods, low prices and liberal treatment. S. J. Link.

An Ordinance.
